

IF. C. Kinsky

- XIV — Diving Petrels (Pelecanoides urinatrix) range widely in New Zealand waters. They prefer to nest on islands where they can burrow into soft humus under a mat of vegetation on a steep slope with direct access to the sea (v. p. 162).